A MESSAGE FROM THE REV. D. MARTIN JACQUES

Dear friends,

It is a truth we are all familiar with that when it is often only when it comes to a person's funeral that we find out the most extraordinary things about them.

Even when we thought we knew them quite well, it comes as a surprise when facts emerge like they were a prisoner of the Japanese during WWII, or they lived in Africa as a young woman, or they were a bowls champion or they served in the Arctic convoys, or been decorated by the queen, or had been a champion dog breeder, or loved baking or dancing.

The list is endless. I come up across this repeatedly because I obviously preside at a lot of funerals.

We think we know people because we occasionally have a chat with them, or work with them, or live next door to them but everybody has a hidden side that we don't see and everybody has a vast hinterland of stories, loves, hates, experiences, achievements, joys and fears stretching right back to their youth.

Who knows what secrets the unassuming little old lady at number 22 holds? Is she a poet, a master baker, and what tragedies lurk in her history? People are endlessly fascinating, unique, and surprising.

One also never knows what pain lurks in their personal histories, from unrequited love to lost children to painful accidents.

You never really know people, especially their vast backstories, but these are the episodes that made them who they are today.

Always give people the respect they obviously deserve. We don't know their joys and tragedies, their achievements and failures, and all that is needed to open people up a bit is to get to know them and ask the right questions.

People are endlessly fascinating and the older a person is, the more fascinating and interesting their recollections become because the world has changed so much.

Do it before they leave us or you may only find out about them at their funeral.

Love and peace.

Martin

Louise and I invite you to a Joint Birthday Party at the Vicarage on Saturday 26th February. 'Bring a bottle' and nibbles. 6.00pm – 10.00pm. See the Pew Sheet for latest information.

The Diocese of Exeter Reflection February 2022

By 2030, according to the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs, there will be more people alive in the world over the age of 60 than under the age of 10. International Development Aid, largely driven by the USA, UK and Germany, has been a remarkable success story, leading to improved life expectancy across the world. However, many developing nations have never had to consider the needs of older people, of pension provision or care for chronic, non-communicable diseases. Additionally, much census information does not break down populations by generation or age group. So the contribution of the older population, whether as childcare providers, economic providers or otherwise, is not known. An older generation has been taken for granted but is not well understood.

Candlemas, the Presentation of Christ in the Temple, celebrated on 2 February, bucks this trend. According to St Luke, the two who recognise Jesus as the infant Messiah, are older people. Simeon is regarded as old, not seeing death before he recognises the Messiah, and Anna, a prophet, is aged eighty-four, having devoted herself to the Temple as a widow for many decades. Scruffy shepherds, foreigners, and now two "old faithfuls" of the Temple have seen God present, and at work, in the baby Jesus.

I'm sure that all of us who have experience of parish or church community life have leaned heavily upon older congregants for their wisdom, their "long view," and for a sense of stability in ever-changing times. For me, the meeting of Simeon and Anna with the baby Jesus is one of the most relatable episodes in the Gospels: an older generation embracing and offering a profound insight into a younger generation is instantly recognisable. That's why I really appreciate Candlemas. After a Christmas season aimed so squarely at children, it's an important reminder of the importance, and prophetic ministry, of so many of our older people. Around 30% of Church of England congregants are aged over 69, so there are a great many Annas and Simeons in our midst! By 2030, along with the global population, that proportion will likely be higher.

St Matthew reminds us, "...can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life?". One of the values that older people can bring into the Church is, I think, very similar to the value that infants bring, a challenge to our preoccupations with busy-ness, growth and productivity, all of which can, I suspect, be something of an idol. The life-experiences, loves and losses of our older population can be remarkably grounding within a community, and can offer a lesson for all of us, helping us to focus upon more sustainable ways of living and loving in faith.

REPORT FROM THE FOOD BANK

In 2021 we supplied a total of 2177 parcels of food feeding 4405 people. In addition, we also supplied 128 Christmas parcels which we hope brought a bit of extra Christmas cheer and help for folk during the festive season. Unfortunately, we are again starting to see a rise in the number of people needing our help. Sadly, the increase seen in the cost of food and utility bills is compounding the situation. All of this came to the attention of the ITV Westcountry news who came to film the Food Bank in action on the 14th December - many of you may have seen it. Although demand for our services has gone up, so have donations of food and money. We are continually amazed by your generosity. We just couldn't provide for our neighbours in our community without you. Thank you for your continuing support. We are very grateful for the wonderful support of Open Door in Exmouth, who provided a special "Love Your Neighbour" gift voucher to go inside our Christmas parcels which will enable folk to enjoy a hot meal and a warm welcome at their community cafe, valid until October 2022. If you are able to donate, we are short of the following: Tinned fish, tinned cold meat, instant potato, bottled squash, long life milk, tinned vegetables, instant coffee and toilet rolls. We would also be grateful for any cleaning products or nappies and we desperately need bags for life please.

We are still supporting along with other agencies the 12 Afghan refugee families who are temporarily staying in the area. We are able to supply them with baby products, nappies and toiletries. We have recently supplied them with the ingredients they needed for the families to have cooking lessons. This has meant not just learning how to cook, but also enabled them to make new friends and become more familiar with our language and culture. They have really enjoyed and appreciated this. Going forward we hope to collaborate and work with other agencies help even more people in the area in need of food and support. We would like to wish all of you a very Happy New Year.

RMC Away Day

This is planned for Saturday 12 February from 10 – 4 at All Saints church Sidmouth. A day to take stock and increase our sense of unity and purpose. This will be a quiet day to rest away from our home churches, engage in some spiritual practices, and wait on God to reveal himself to us. It is open to all people in any of our churches to engage and immerse themselves in the stream of His Spirit. "Unless the Lord builds the house, they labour in vain that build it" (Psalm 127:1)

Following our very successful Blister Pack Recycling scheme (which is still ongoing!) we are now inviting the ladies in the congregation to put unwanted Bras in this bright pink bin, situated in church outside Fran's office.

This will help to raise vital funds for the charity Against Breast Cancer.

NEWS FROM ST. PETER'S SCHOOL

Head Steve Hitchcock writes: I invited Simon Jupp, our MP for East Devon, to the school so I could explain lots of the challenges we are facing. He agreed that we needed new classrooms to replace the ones on the field, and took on board all the funding challenges facing the school. He was really impressed with the positive atmosphere around the school. We enjoyed visiting some classes. The Year 6s asked him some challenging questions around how he does his job, and what might happen with Boris!
